1 Head over to Lapidica's lately opened Belgravia showroom to take in its new 'Composition' collection, a set of 12 striking geometric patterns fit for both walls and floors – all in first-rate stone, including travertine marble. Further delights can be found online, such as 'Celestial', an Italian porcelain that sets golden stars against mottled blue and nods to the frescoes of the Renaissance. 2 This fabulous door knob is from Turnstyle Designs, whose signature hand-hammered finish makes for a distinctively tactile experience. The 'Sphere' begins as a ball of brass and is then turned to perfect its shape, before artisans hammer in the brand's one-of-a-kind pattern. As well as both door and cabinet types, the knob comes in a choice of satin, burnished or polished metals. Visit turnstyledesigns.com

3 In a recent renovation project, Ledbury Studio deployed metal finishes to give an airy kitchen a touch of industrial chic. The coffee station and refrigeration cupboards (shown) are clad in patinated zinc, which contrasts beautifully with the space's wider polish. Aged brass handles, kickplates, taps and lights join the fray – metallic notes that, together, produce a magnetic effect. Visit ledburystudio.com

4 Created by Armac Martin and Sophie Paterson, the 'Claremont' line is the height of pared-back elegance. Available in several finishes, its bath-towel and loo-roll holders are responsibly made from solid brass and hand-finished in the UK. A refined addition to any bathroom, the collection also includes brass mirrors, ideal for continuing the theme into the dressing room. Visit armacmartin.co.uk
